've spent the last three years working as a graphic artist and general content creator for websites and publications that feature a wide variety of subjects. During that time, I've logged thousands of hours doing everything related to the content creation process. I have a large amount of experience working with newspapers and magazines where formatting and clear presentation of information is a must. Because of these experiences, I'm able to accomplish the two largest goals a designer should have: 1) To design something that's eye-catching and keeps the reader's attention while 2) presenting that information in an easily digestible manner.
